Membership Guide & FAQ

Choose what fits how you play.

Your rate stays yours.

Whatever rate you join at stays yours for as long as you keep your membership. Do the honest math, and if you're torn between two, ask us. We'll tell you straight, even when the cheaper one is the better fit.

The courts are yours 9 PM to 7 AM. Built for night shifts, swing shifts, and schedules nothing else fits. You get a key fob and let yourself in. Daytime play is welcome at $7.50 a session.

> The one rule: your fob opens the door for you and nobody else. Not a guest, not a spouse, not a doubles partner. Bring guests during staffed hours and we'll take care of them properly.

Do the honest math

At $29.99 Partial and $69.99 Unlimited, Partial costs less for up to 9 sessions a month. At 10 or more, Unlimited costs less. Drop-in is $15; Partial pays for itself in two visits.

FAQ

Will my rate go up later? No. Whatever rate you join at is yours for as long as your membership stays active. When the rates change, they change for new members.

When does membership start? When it's activated in Court Reserve.

What's the difference between Partial and Unlimited? Partial includes four plays a month per adult. Unlimited includes one two-hour session a day per adult, plus free same-day open courts. Extra Partial sessions are $7.50.

Is membership worth it versus drop-in? Drop-in is $15. Partial at $29.99 pays for itself in two visits; at $39.99, in fewer than three.

Can I move from Partial to Unlimited? Yes, if spots remain. A founding Partial rate doesn't transfer if you change plans.

What counts as a Family membership? Two adults and up to four children. Both Family plans include junior programming.

Are plays shared? No. Team of Two Partial and Family Partial include four plays for each adult.

Do I need a rating? Banded open play uses your E.H. Player Rating. Not sure of yours? Take a look at the scale and add it to your Court Reserve account.

When is open play? Current times are always in Court Reserve.

Do I need to book? Yes. Book in Court Reserve so we know to expect you.

I'm a tennis club member. You pay member prices for open play, with a 5-day booking window.

What happens when a cap is reached? That membership stops being sold and new players join a waitlist. Spots reopen when someone leaves.

Why cap membership at all? Four courts can hold only so many people before a session becomes more waiting than playing. We'd rather protect the experience than oversell the club.

Your Membership Is Yours

Effective October 21, 2026 - Every membership and program

Your membership belongs to the person whose name is on it. Only that person may play under it. Team of Two and Family memberships cover only the people named on the account.

Two things are not allowed: letting someone else play under your membership or account, and sending a friend in your place instead of cancelling.

If a membership is used by someone else, the member who allowed it loses their membership. The spot goes to the next person on our waitlist.

This applies to Unlimited, Partial, Team of Two, Family, Senior Crew (SilverSneakers and Renew Active), Rise and Shine, Burning the Midnight Oil, and every league, clinic, and session.

Everyone on court must have a signed waiver on file. Staff must know exactly who is in the building. Key fobs and after-hours access belong to one person.

Can't make it? Cancel in CourtReserve so the spot releases.
